meeting will be part of that process. Members are expected to raise questions on local, state and national issues.

Local resolutions which are approved will become policy of the county Farm Bureau. State and national issues will be sent to the state FB convention in Richmond, Nov. 27-30, and national's resolutions will be forwarded to the American Farm Bureau convention in Atlanic City in January.

The Women's Committee is sponsoring an Arts and Crafts Exhibit at the dinner meeting Oct. 13, 1973, in the Appomattox County High School. Please bring your Arts & Crafts. You may also enter the State exhibit. There are no prizes given but you may sell them if you desire. Let's have a nice exhibit at the dinner meeting.

The Appomattox Farm Bureau Women's Committee is sponsoring a Farm Bureau cook book which will go to the press in the near future. We would like each of you to submit recipes. They should be typed on a separate sheet with your name, county, cooking temperatures and number it will serve. We want each of you to have a part in this cook book. Bring your recipes to the dinner meeting Oct. 13, 1973.

Jesse W. Morgan

Graduate Receives Honors

Jesse Willard Morgan, a 1973 graduate of Appomattox County High School and an entering Freshman at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, has recently been the recipient of several honors.

The Graeville P. Meade scholarships of $500 for the freshman year is awarded on a competitive basis to a deserving student possessing outstanding qualities of scholastic achievement, character, and service. This is a highly coveted award requiring endorsement of teachers and various community leaders attesting to the worthiness of the applicant.

Jesse has also received the Smith-Douglas scholar ship which is awarded annually to a deserving student enrolled in agriculture at a state supported college. The amount of this scholarship is $350.

During the week of the Virginia State Fair in Richmond, September 24-29, Jesse was a guest at the Governor's luncheon at the John Marshall Hotel. At this meeting sponsored by the board of directors of the Atlantic Rural Exposition, he was awarded one of the seven annual scholarships for $500 available to students enrolled at VPI and SU or VCU in agriculture studies. Jesse had an additional honor of serving as escort for "Miss State Fair of 1973."

While attending Appomattox County High School, Jesse was active in class and club projects serving sentinel for the FFA during his senior year and on various executive committees. He plans to work toward a degree in Agriculture Education at VPI and SU with a long range goal of teaching in Virginia Schools.
